MEMORANDUM
FROM:	Doug Killingsworth, Fuel & Measures Division Director
DATE:	8-29-2019
SUBJECT:	Hurricane concerns

With Hurricane Dorian currently in the Atlantic Ocean heading north there is a possible threat of tropical storm force winds and rain for Georgia beginning on Sunday, September 1st, 2019. At this time the Georgia Department of Agriculture would like to remind retail service station operators across the state to remain vigilant with their storage tanks. There is a possibility for large amounts of standing water, so please ensure that all underground storage tank fill caps are secure and tight to prevent water from entering the tanks.

Station operators should feel free to contact our office should they have concerns about possible water contamination. We can send personnel out to conduct testing and work with the stations to ensure that their products are acceptable for sale.
